

16Mar2017 Comment to FCC re: Net Neutrality

Any attempt(s) by the FCC to change Net Neutrality to benefit monopolistic cable companies and Internet Service Providers would be an abomination to the American public. Metering data streams on the Internet that benefit only cable companies/ISPs is not benefit to the general American public. If you care any at all about the average American citizen and doing your job on the Commission, you will not void the concept of Net Neutrality. Do not embrace Net Metering. There is no monitoring now by the FCC of the Internet and many of us network professionals know that net metering and cutting back data pipes for the public is already occurring. DO THE RIGHT THING AND DON'T SELL OUT THE AMERICAN PUBLIC.

HARRY S. VANN